

The scale of the pods is very modest, nestled within naturally occurring gaps in the trees. The planted green roof will help blend the units with the understorey and the natural timber appearance will camouflage into the landscape. The curved rooflines directly answer the topography of the site.

For exact scale, refer to separately issued drawings of Kabina.